LOCATION OF THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE.

The Pennsylvania State College is located in Centre County, almost in the geographical center of the state, and twelve miles from Bellefonte, the county seat. It lies adjacent to the borough of 'State College', which now contains a population of about three thousand, and most of the students are quartered in private homes and fraternity houses in the town. Situated on a plateau, nearly twelve hundred feet above the sea level, in a broad, rolling valley, with views of Nittany Mountain on the east, Tussey Mountain on the south, and Muncy Mountain on the north, the college offers a beautiful and inspiring environment, an attractive climate, and healthful surroundings.

HISTORY OF THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE

The Pennsylvania State College is the Pennsylvania unit in a national system of state colleges created under the 'Morrill Act' of the United States Congress, passed July 2, 1862, and an act of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania passed April 1, 1863.

Action looking toward the establishment of such an institution was first taken in 1855, when several public spirited citizens of the Commonwealth, encouraged by the State Board of Agriculture, secured a charter from the Legislature of Pennsylvania for a 'Farmers High School'. It was this institution that was designated in 1862 to fulfill then, later requirements of the Morrill Act, which specifies that

"The leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanical arts..... in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life".

In 1855 a gift of 200 acres in Centre County was accepted from General James Irwin, and the erection of the original building was begun. Following the partial completion of that building classes were begun on February 20, 1859, with a total enrollment of 69 students. In December 1861, the first class, containing eleven students, was graduated; this was probably the first class graduated from a purely agricultural institution in the United States.

Dr. Evan Pugh, the first president of the institution, was elected December 7, 1859. He died in office, April 29, 1864. During his administration, in May, 1862, The Court of Centre County changed the name of the institution from the 'Farmers High School' to the 'Agricultural College of Pennsylvania'. In 1874, by an action of the Court of Centre County, the name was again changed, this time to 'The Pennsylvania State College'.

During the succeeding years the college grew slowly until it now offers thirty nine courses to about 3400 students. The 200 acres has increased to 1600; the one building to thirty eight. Extension service in engineering, agriculture, home economics, liberal arts, and mining has been established and the combined work of all reaches ten thousand or more citizens of the Commonwealth annually. Experimental stations for agriculture, engineering, and mining have been established and have been rendering valuable service in their respective lines.

On October 14, 1921, Dr. John Martin Thomas, D.D., LL.D., was inaugurated as the ninth president, succeeding Dr. Edwin Erle Sparks.

The future of Penn State is indeed a bright one. During the current year Dr. Thomas has inaugurated an intensive campaign for the purpose of erecting on the campus of the college a group of student welfare buildings which include a college hospital, a modern gymnasium, a student union building, and several dormitories. To this campaign the students have given their most generous support and the contributions from the alumni and citizens of Pennsylvania have been most gratifying. Some of the buildings have already been started and indications point to a successful culmination of the $2,000,000 drive. Penn State lives not alone in the present but is looking forward to the time when she can take her place at the head of the great body of State Universities and fulfill her duties as the head of the Pennsylvania's great system of education.

COLLEGES WITHIN THE INSTITUTION

The Institution is divided into five great schools which are as follows;

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE.--Courses in Agricultural Education, Agronomy, Animal Husbandry, Botany, Chemical Agriculture, Dairy Husbandry, Forestry, Horticulture, Landscape Architecture, and Poultry Husbandry.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING.--Courses in Architecture, Architectural Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Electrochemical Engineering, Industrial Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Milling Engineering, Railway Mechanical Engineering, and Sanitary Engineering.

SCHOOL OF LIBERAL ARTS.--Courses in Classics, Commerce and Finance, History, Economics, and Political Science(Pre-Legal), Mathematics, Education and Psychology, and Modern Languages and Literature.

SCHOOL OF MINES.-----Courses in Metallurgical Engineering, Mining Engineering, and Mining Geology.

DEPARTMENTS.

DEPARTMENT OF HOME ECONOMICS.-- Courses in Domestic Science, Domestic Art, and Vocational Home Economics.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITARY SCIENCE AND TACTICS.--A course incorporated in all schools.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION.-- A course incorporated in all the schools.

SOURCES OF SUPPORT

The College is supported by the income from certain grants made by the National Government and by public taxation through appropriations of the State Legislature. The original Land Grant Act of 1862 brings the college an annual income of $30,000 to which is added under later acts of Congress the permanent sum of $ 50,000 annually.

These moneys are available only for limited purposes of instruction. The further sum of $30,000 is received from the Federal Government for the maintenance of an Experimental Station devoted to the investigation of practical agricultural problems, and the publication of results, but not for instruction. New Acts passed in 1914 and in 1917 provide an increasing amount annually for the Extension work and vocational training in Agriculture and Home Economics.

Since 1887 no session of the State Legislature has failed to redeem the pledge made to the Federal Government in 1863, although no arrangement has been made for permanent appropriation. The amount varies from session to session. By means of private gifts, two buildings have been erected and a number of scholarships established, but no endowment funds for general maintenance or expense have been given.

. The last session of the State Legislature, in 1921, granted the following appropriations to the college for the two year period: General Maintenance, $1,600,000; Buildings, $250,000; Agricultural Extension, $450,000; Engineering Mining and Liberal Arts Extension, $35,000; Summer Session, $40,000; Tobacco Experiments, $6,000;

The college maintains the same relation to the free high schools of the state that they maintain to the lower grades of the common schools; and an advance is made possible by co-operation from the lowest to the highest part of the state educational system. Effort has been made to urge upon the students an appreciation of the benefits they derive from the Nation and the Commonwealth and the necessity of making a proper return by the living of lives of superior usefulness.

BUILDINGS.

The college buildings used for instructional, experimental, and dormitory purposes are thirty eight in number, grouped according to the several schools into which the college is divided. The majority of these buildings are modern fire-proof structures, all of which are heated throughout with steam, and lighted by electricity.

The main Agricultural Group is built of stone and of light brick, with Terra Cotta trimmings and tile roof. The Agricultural, Horticultural, and Dairy buildings are of this style. Near by are the Animal Nutrition building, Experimental Station, Stock Pavilion, Dairy Barn, and Greenhouses.

The Engineering Group consists of ten buildings for Testing Materials, Industrial Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Railway and Electrochemical Engineering, the Foundry and Thermal Testing Plant. A new Mechanical Engineering Laboratory has been constructed. Architectural, Civil and Milling Engineering are in a large frame building.

The new Liberal Arts Group is built of white stone and light brick, with terra cotta trimmings. One wing of the building is now completed. This group also includes the Carnegie Library and the Auditorium, both constructed of the same material.

The Mining Group uses for building material brown stone and dark brick. The main building houses the mining museum and provides class rooms and laboratories.

The Natural Science Group, of which one wing is erected, is built of white sand stone, with terra cotta trimmings. This school also occupies two adjacent buildings, commodious and well equipped, which will be razed when the new group is completed.

The Home Economics Classes are conducted in the Womens' Building, which is built of red brick, with a slate roof. Part of the building is used as a dormitory for women.

BUILDINGS CONTINUED.

Old Main, the historic center of the campus, is used for administration purposes and as a men's dormitory. McAllister Hall, constructed of light brick has class rooms on the first floor and women's dormitories above. The Armory and Gymnasium is equipped for military drill and gymnastic exercises. The Forestry and Botany Buildings serve the purposes of instruction along their various lines.

The policy of erecting permanent, harmonious, and fire-proof buildings, inaugurated by the Legislature of 1913, if followed for a few years, will transform the appearance of the college and give it a setting worthy of the great Commonwealth.

The entire college is equipped with the latest improved apparatus both in class rooms and in laboratories.

According to Luther: "Music is a discipline, and a mistress of order and good manners; she makes the people milder and gentler, more moral and more reasonable," to which Napoleon added: "It is that to which the legislator ought to give the greatest encouragement," while to Carlyle it was: "A kind of inarticulate, unfathomable speech, which leads us to the edge of the infinite, and lets us for moments gaze into that."

In America, music has become of necessity, one of the greatest factors in her educational system; and why should it not? Is not music the language of soul, the speech that makes us brothers all?

Mr. Wesley E. Gentlemen:-

I understand that the members of the Band at The Pennsylvania State College are applying for a Charter in the Kappa Kappa Psi Fraternity.

It affords me pleasure to say that the members of the Band at this institution are held in high esteem by both the student body and the faculty. It is a recognized fact that we have one of the best college bands in the country, and this speaks well for the members.

So far as I know, the members of the State College Band are men of splendid qualifications. In scholarship I believe they are at least equal to other groups of students, and I know that some of the members are far above the average in this respect.

I believe that this group of men is entirely worthy of consideration for membership in your organization.

Yours very truly,
